Llano County Commissioners Court has approved a new set of floodplain regulations effective May 2, 2012 that is included on our website for your reference as The Llano County Flood Prevention Order. You are encouraged to review the updated regulations and offer any comments or questions at the above address.

The new floodplain maps from FEMA are already in use by Llano County for issuing permits and will go into effect overall by FEMA on May 2, 2012. You may view your location in Llano County on the new maps by going to Maps.riskmap6.com/TX/Llano/. If you have a structure that is now in the floodplain you should check with your insurance company to see if preferred rates are available before the May 2, 2012 effective date.
